

Admiral Resolve

For when certainty matters especially when impersonation is possible

Freight usually goes fine

- Most freight moves without incident.
- Most handoffs work as expected.
- Most of the time, the request you receive is legitimate.

The problem isn't how often things go wrong. It's knowing whether a request is legitimate or an impersonation when it matters.

That's when guessing whether a request is real isn't acceptable.

Admiral Resolve exists for those moments.

What Admiral Resolve does

Admiral Resolve makes it clear whether a requester is legitimate — before you decide.

When a decision carries consequence, proceeding without complete, verifiable information creates exposure.

Resolve ensures you have something solid to rely on before you act. Not after. When required, legitimacy is confirmed as documented authorization, so decisions don't rely on assumption or informal proof.

Resolve does not assume something is wrong. It exists for the moments when certainty is required.

Resolve fits into how work already happens

Resolve does not replace your tools. It does not require rollout, integration, or approval.

It can be used once, by one person, for one decision without changing how you operate.

When you need clarity

▶ When something matters and you need to decide, Resolve helps you verify it.

- Forward the message or instruction to verify@admiral.level5fleet.com.
- Receive confirmation on whether the request is legitimate or unverified.
- Make the decision with clarity.

The outcome is documented automatically, so you can:

- act with confidence in the moment
- show what you relied on later (audit, review, dispute)

Resolve gives you something concrete to point to, not just a judgment call.

▶ When someone else needs confidence

When you need to assure a counterparty that a request is legitimate, Resolve issues a verified resolution request.

It clearly states:

- who is requesting the action
- what is being authorized
- where and when it applies

The result is documented and verifiable, so your counterparty can resolve your request with speed and confidence based on shared, explicit trust.

▶ Designed for the people who carry responsibility

Resolve is built for:

- shipping clerks
- dispatchers
- yard managers
- operations leaders

The people who must decide whether a request is legitimate. For those who don't controlling the truck or the trailer.

How Resolve fits the system

Resolve operates before execution, deciding what is legitimate and authorized.

Admiral Enforce ensures those decisions are carried out at the asset.

Resolve removes guesswork. Enforce removes violation. Each stands on its own. Together, they remove judgment calls from freight execution.

Clarity before you decide.

If your role depends on getting it right, Resolve gives you certainty, not assumptions.
